Introduction

In 1985, America was introduced to a little movie called Back to the Future and North Carolina was introduced to a new organization — what’s now called the Adolescent Pregnancy Prevention Campaign of North Carolina.

This year’s conference is a celebration of where we’ve been and where we’re going — with a few surprises thrown in. So hop inside our data Delorean and get ready for a journey through 30 years of our work together and a peek into the future.

We look forward to seeing you as we take a ride through our shared past, present, and future.

People Power: A Workshop on Community Mobilization

Mobilizing community members and organizations is an important part of a successful community initiative. The goal of this workshop is to deconstruct principles of community mobilization and explore how to incorporate these principles into existing community efforts. This session will present research based-characteristics of community mobilization efforts and strategies for applying these principles to adolescent pregnancy prevention. Participants in this session will identify non-traditional partners within their communities and practice messaging and engaging them for specific purposes. Participants will also build skills in linking pregnancy prevention to broader community health issues to increase program sustainability. We will workshop barriers and share strategies.

Trainers: Sally Swanson, MSW, MSPH, Director of Prevention Programs; Sarah Davis, MPH, Public Health Specialist, Adolescent Pregnancy Prevention Campaign of North Carolina

Pizza is the Key to Healthy Sexuality
Al Vernacchio, MSEd

Al Vernacchio is a high school sexuality educator and English teacher at Friends’ Central School in Wynnewood, Pennsylvania. A human sexuality educator for more than 20 years, Al lectures and offers workshops throughout the country. His work was the feature of a 2011 New York Times Magazine cover story, and his TED Talk, Sex Needs A New Metaphor, has been viewed more than 1 million times. In 2014 he published For Goodness Sex: Changing the Way We Talk to Teens About Sexuality, Values, and Health, which refutes the "disaster prevention" mode of sexuality education in favor of a more positive approach towards healthy sexuality, values, and body image in young people. Al lives in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

A1. What are they REALLY asking? Adolescents’ questions submitted to the BrdsNBz Text Message Warm Line
Text messaging is an important communication tool. In fact, over 75% percent of young people ages 12-19 use text messaging as their primary means of communication – with some averaging more than 450 text messages each week. Join this session as we present comparative information about texts submitted by 13-19-year-olds to BrdsNBz North Carolina. We’ll also discuss trends in text messaging and research behind current text messaging initiatives, as well as how to evaluate text messaging data.

Presenter: Kennon Jackson, Jr., MA, Director – BrdsNBz National, Adolescent Pregnancy Prevention Campaign of North Carolina

Workshop Categories: Capacity-Building; Collaborations; Social Marketing
Format: Lecture/Discussion
Content Level: Beginner

A2. Meeting the Needs of LGBTQ Youth
Creating a safe and respectful environment for LGBTQ youth is an issue across the country and the state. The Centers for Disease Control’s Division of Adolescent and School Health is taking a lead by assisting State Education Agencies in educating teachers, staff, administrators, and students about LGBTQ equality. This session will provide a national perspective and the latest research and best practices for appropriately addressing the needs of these students. In particular, we will provide guidance to health professionals who work with youth on issues such as appropriate use of pronouns, safe restroom and locker room environments, and legal implications regarding transgender youth. This interactive, thought-provoking session will provide examples of model policy used by other states.

Presenters: Sally Goss, MS, CHES, Health Education Specialist: Promoting Adolescent Health through School Based HIV/STD Prevention, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention/Division of Adolescent and School Health; Sherry Lehman, MEd, LPC, HIV Policies & Programs Consultant, NC Department of Public Instruction

Workshop Categories: Cultural Competence; Gender/Sexuality; HIV/STIs
Format: Lecture/Discussion
Content Level: Beginner; Intermediate

A3. Providing Sexual and Reproductive Health Services to Adolescent Males: Lessons Learned from the Engaging Young Men’s Initiative in Gastonia, NC
This session will describe common barriers adolescent males face in accessing sexual and reproductive health care, national recommendations and best practices for providing them with SRH services, and key resources health centers can use to improve their ability to address their SRH needs. The session will also include a presentation of key steps and lessons learned from a pilot project with two health centers in Gaston County, NC that seeks to improve the quality of and access to sexual and reproductive health care for adolescent males as a strategy to improve health outcomes, including reducing teen pregnancy.

Presenters: Karen Schlanger, PhD, MPH, Senior Technical Advisor for Quality Improvement and Performance Management, CAI; Velma Taormina, MD, FACOG, Medical Director, Gaston County Department of Health and Human Services

Workshop Categories: Accessing Clinical Care; Boys/Young Men
Format: Lecture/Discussion
Content Level: Beginner; Intermediate

A4. Keeping the Faith Sex Positive
This workshop will explore a few aspects of the Christian faith that for many youth and program staff provides nurturing, guidance, optimism, and comfort that may actually be viewed as sex negative for others. The workshop will seek to provide examples of positive sex messages and reframing that may be a place of neutrality for some youth educators, counselors, and program staff. The aim of the session is to discover strategies and messages that are both faith and sex positive.

Presenter: Tanya Bass, MS, CHES, Training Consultant

Workshop Categories: Collaborations; Healthy Development; Skills-Building
Format: Lecture/Discussion
Content Level: Intermediate
B1. What's media got to do with it? Addressing sexual health misinformation with media literacy education for adolescents

Studies have shown that media may have an effect on adolescent sexual behavior. Exposure to degrading music and sexually explicit television has been linked to subsequent sexual activity and pregnancy in young adults. Media literacy education (MLE) represents an innovative and accessible way to teach comprehensive sexual education. This presentation will discuss the development and evaluation of Media Aware - Sexual Health, a comprehensive MLE program for influencing adolescents' sexual health and media literacy outcomes. Attendees will participate in lively interactive discussions of media examples and experience MLE activities that are used in the classroom to promote adolescent sexual health.

Presenter: Tracy Scull, PhD, Research Scientist; Christina Malik, PhD, Research Scientist; and Kimberly Vuong, MPH, CHES, innovation Research & Training

Workshop Categories: Adolescent Pregnancy/Parenting; Contraception; Gender/Sexuality; HIV/STIs; Relationships; School-Based Sex Ed; Skills-Building Format: Discussion Content Level: Beginner; Intermediate; Advanced

B2. Project NO REST

The purpose of this presentation is to increase awareness regarding human trafficking and how it affects children and youth involved in the child welfare system in North Carolina. The presentation will address some of the work being done to increase prevention and to provide services to child welfare and youth who are identified as victims of trafficking.

Presenters: Kiricka Yarbough Smith, BSW, Human Trafficking Consultant, Project NO REST Workshop Categories: Collaborations Format: Lecture/Discussion Content Level: Intermediate

B3. Five Years and 40% Fewer pregnancies: culminating Lessons Learned from Gaston Community Leaders

Now in the final year of a five-year community-wide teen pregnancy prevention initiative, a panel of project stakeholders will share highlights of lessons learned. Panelists will include an OB/GYN, public school assistant superintendent, a United Way leader, and APPCNC staff. In addition to sharing pivotal lessons learned, they will discuss tactics that can be replicated with few or limited resources. This interactive, discussion-based session provides an opportunity to learn how to effectively engage schools, health care providers, and funders in teen pregnancy prevention.

Panelists: Velma T aormina, M.D., FACoG, Medical Director, Gaston County Department of Health and Human Services; Melissa Wilson Balknight, EdD, Assistant Superintendent of Student Support Services, Gaston County Schools; Sally Swanson, MSW, MSPH, Director of Prevention Programs, APPCNC; Kayla Bryant, MSW Intern, APPCNC

B4. Great Sexpressions! Creating a “Yes Means Yes” Culture of Consent

This session will model a safe group setting environment for discussing the topic of clear, confident consent with adolescents. This workshop will uncover shaming messages and focus on a positive approach to language used in creating classroom structure and culture, program development, and community-wide messaging. Through engaging activities facilitators will normalize the natural, healthy feelings of adolescent sexual desire and address communication skills specific to building a culture of clear, confident consent in the context of responsible sexual decision-making. Participants will feel inspired to create a learning environment where young people believe their bodies are extraordinary, powerful and worth protecting.

Presenter: Jean Workman, MA, Director of Development, APPCNC

Workshop Categories: Boys/Young Men; Gender/Sexuality; Healthy Development; School-Based Sex Ed; Skills-Building Format: Lecture/Discussion Content Level: Beginner; Intermediate; Advanced
C1. Sustaining Prevention Programming in Cabarrus County #sustainability4schools

The Cabarrus Health Alliance (CHA) is the Public Health Authority of Cabarrus County and serves as the local Health Department. Through several Teen Pregnancy Prevention Initiatives, CHA works specifically with middle school youth to educate them about sexual and reproductive health. "Smart Girls Know" is an afterschool program in seven middle schools in Cabarrus County. The "TAIL Arts Initiative" is an afterschool arts program unique to one school site. Both work to educate and empower youth by establishing meaningful relationships through mentorship and providing a safe space to share talents. Session participants will learn how to establish a framework for sustaining prevention efforts unique to your community, and identify strategies to maintain a healthy relationship with a school system or other partners.

Presenter: Brittany Schwartz, BSPH, Smart Girls Know Program Coordinator, Cabarrus Health Alliance; Jordan Melton, BS, BA, Teen Pregnancy Prevention Initiative Program Coordinator, Cabarrus Health Alliance

Workshop Categories: Adolescent Pregnancy/Parenting; Collaborations; Relationships; School-Based Sex Ed

C3. The MyHealthEd Pilot Study: Lessons Learned on Feasibility and Usability of an Online Sex Education Intervention Among 9th Grade Students in Rural North Carolina

Former teachers Liz Chen and Vichi Jagannathan have set out to deliver high-quality online sexual health education to students in low-resourced, rural high schools in North Carolina. After pilot testing their adapted version of Reducing the Risk, they have assessed the feasibility, usability, and basic effectiveness of this online classroom program. Come hear about the major lessons learned, and discuss how these lessons can apply to your own research and practice. In addition, check out MyHealthEd's unique online features, including a real-time chat simulator and interactive role-play activities. We continue to seek your input as we improve!

Presenters: Liz Chen, MPH, Co-Founder and Principal Investigator of the MyHealthEd Project, Department of Health Behavior, UNC Gillings School of Global Public Health; Vichi Jagannathan, Co-Founder of MyHealthEd and West Coast Regional Manager, TEALS (Technology Education and Literacy in Schools)

D1. Talking to the Good Guys: Enlisting Males in the Fight Against Rape

“I’m not a rapist. Why should I have to listen to this?” Boys and men commonly feel accused and blamed during anti-rape education. This session will discuss ways educators can break through defensiveness and approach males as potential helpers rather than potential rapists. Educators will learn how to enlist males in resisting rape culture; condemning coercive behaviors; and normalizing healthy, consensual relationships. After this session, you will be able to create programming that increases empathy for survivors and aversion to rape; encourages active, affirmative consent; and challenges males to step up and do their part to end rape.

Presenter: Carter Shotwell, MSW, Wise Guys Educator, Children’s Home Society of North Carolina

Workshop Categories: Boys/Young Men; Gender/Sexuality; Relationships; School-Based Sex Ed; Skills-Building

D2. A New Way of Thinking About Grant Writing

Hate writing grants? Tired of working hard on your proposal and then getting turned down by the funder? Always wanted to learn, but scared to try? Maybe you’re thinking about it all wrong. This workshop will teach you a new way of thinking about grant writing that will increase your chances of getting funded. Whether you’re a complete novice or an experienced grant writer, the workshop will provide you with specific tips and techniques that can transform the way you write proposals. Come learn how the presenter secured over $75 million dollars in funded proposals using this unique approach.

Presenters: Dr. Paul N. McKenzie, Director, Southeast Center for Strategic Community Development
Workshop Categories: Capacity-Building; Collaborations
Format: Lecture/Discussion

D3. Creating Opportunities: Person-Centered Planning with Young Families. A shift in how we approach goal-planning with teen and young parents.

Young parents need to feel in control of their lives and have the confidence and tools to succeed. The Rockingham County Partnership for Children has incorporated the Person-Centered Planning model into our work with young parents and discovered that it enables parents to be active, invested participants in creating strength-based life goal plans and the development of support circles. This workshop will provide you with more information on the PCP model as it applies to young parents and how PCP fits into the case management and service delivery process.

Presenters: Dawn Charaba, MBA, Young Parenting Program Coordinator; and Daphne Alsiyao, MSW, Connect Case Manager, Rockingham County Partnership for Children

Workshop Categories: Adolescent Pregnancy/Parenting; Collaborations; Skills-Building

D4. A Model for Preparing and Supporting Program Staff to Successfully Implement a School-Based Evidence-Based Intervention

A model of staff training and support as part of a federal Tier I Teen Outreach Program implementation has provided an opportunity for facilitators across a diverse region to have a wide range of learning experiences that help them feel prepared to meet the unique challenges in their communities. Implementation staff had to have skills to navigate school relationships, support a rigorous evaluation, recruit program participants, and deliver a high quality program. At the same time, these facilitators embraced standardized practices and adhered to curriculum fidelity. Learn some of the strategies that resulted in program staff feeling supported, engaged, and successful!

Presenter: Carole Miller, MEd, Chief Learning Officer, Planned Parenthood of the Great Northwest

CHOSE ONE (Note: Workshops E1 – E4 are ONLY offered during this session.)

E1. Sustainability: Promises, Pitfalls, and Progress
In this session, the Iredell-Statesville Proud And Responsible Communities (PARC) staff will discuss the initial grant proposal and sustainability plan for their federally-funded project. The session will include an in-depth discussion of what a sustainability plan really is and how to put that plan into action. PARC will also share lessons learned during their sustainability phase. You will leave this session with a better understanding of how to write grant proposals and sustainability plans and work with your local Board of Education, County Commissioners, and Board of Health.

Presenter: Linda Rogers, MS, Project Director; and Amanda Peters, MEd, Program Specialist, PARC Program, Iredell-Statesville Schools
Workshop Categories: Capacity-Building; Collaborations; School-Based Sex Ed Format: Lecture/Discussion Content Level: Intermediate

Good news: North Carolina’s teen pregnancy rates continued to decline in 2013! Not-so-good news: there remain pockets of high rates, even in counties with some of the lowest rates. Join us for a closer look at rates among youth of color, older youth, rural youth, etc., and participate in discussions about how the data might be used to address these disparities.

Presenters: Joy Sotolongo, MS, Evaluation Specialist, APPCNC. Workshop Categories: Adolescent Pregnancy/Parenting Format: Lecture/Discussion Content Level: Beginner; Intermediate

E3. A Replication of Draw the Line/Respect the Line in Rural California: A Case Study Mixed Methods Design
This session will discuss a study of Latino adolescents, grades 6-8, participating in a Draw the Line/Respect the Line implementation in a high-poverty rural community in California. The research findings were consistent with the conclusion that Draw the Line curricula are effective in providing rural Latino adolescents the tools needed to resist peer pressure and sexual risks behaviors. We will identify ways in which health care providers, school staff, and policy makers can encourage and support Latino adolescents residing in rural communities to make informed decisions about their sexual and reproductive health as they transition from childhood to adolescence.

Presenters: Brittany D. Chambers, MPH, Doctoral Student, University of North Carolina, Greensboro
Workshop Categories: Cultural Competence; Hispanic/Latino/a Outreach; HIV/STIs; School-Based Sex Ed; Skills-Building Format: Lecture/Discussion Content Level: Beginner

E4. Healthy Before Pregnancy – A Preconception Health Curriculum for High School Students in NC
Learn about how the March of Dimes’ preconception health curriculum for high school students was developed and how it is being utilized across North Carolina to teach teen girls and boys about the importance of reproductive life planning, taking folic acid to prevent birth defects, and how their choices and health behaviors now can impact their birth outcomes in the future. Participants will also walk through a mock lesson plan.

Presenter: Brenda Stubbs, BS, Regional Program Coordinator, March of Dimes, Triad Division
Workshop Categories: Adolescent Pregnancy/Parenting; School-Based Sex Ed Format: Lecture/Discussion Content Level: Beginner/Intermediate
